Triangle Food and City Tours brings tourists to the area...

RALEIGH, N.C., June 1, 2025— For over 17 years, Triangle Food & City Tours has been a driving force in attracting visitors to downtown Raleigh, Durham, and the greater Triangle area. What began in 2008 as the small, locally-owned food tour company has since evolved into a trusted tourism partner—welcoming thousands of guests and helping to support over 100 local businesses. We were the first company leading tours in downtown Raleigh and Durham.

With more than 150,000 guests served to date, the majority exploring downtown Raleigh then Durham, Cary, and Chapel Hill, Triangle Food & City Tours continues to play a key role in promoting the region's cultural and economic vitality. By showcasing the area's food, architecture, and hidden history, the company drives tourism traffic and increases the likelihood that visitors will return—and spend.

“We’re not just giving tours—we’re creating experiences that make people fall in love with our partner cities,” says owner Jacquelyn Manson. “When guests discover something unexpected or personal on one of our tours, they’re more likely to come back, share it with friends, and support the local businesses they encountered along the way.”

Through these engaging and immersive experiences, Triangle Food & City Tours continues to strengthen the region's tourism ecosystem—driving foot traffic to restaurants, shops, museums, and historic sites.

Triangle Food & City Tours has been proud to give back to local groups including matching guest donations to the Inter-Faith Food Shuttle and donating walking tours to non-profit auction fundraisers.

We believe in being a part of the community and are a member of the NC Museum of Natural Sciences, NC Museum of History, City of Raleigh Museum, Wake County Historical Society, and donated to the Pauli Murray Center and Joel Lane Museum Home just to name a few.
